

Ensuring You Do Have the Final Say!!!

“Giving you peace of mind by ensuring that all is in order and your wishes are known when it really matters”.

As you get older you can be faced with many challenges that can affect your ability to take care of yourself and your affairs. Leaving this up to your loved ones to take over and manage your affairs can also be a challenge for them. Therefore it is important to be sure that you have everything in order and that your wishes are clearly spelt out whilst you are able to do so.

The presentation provides:

- Practical tips on what you should be documenting
- Tools to help you to collate your information in one place
- Motivation to want to get started now

There will be complimentary templates available.

Also available to purchase is a Keeping It Together Workbook from $20.

To complement the presentation this workbook is available for people to get started. The fill in the gaps format makes it easy for you to collate all your important information and ensures that you don't forget anything.

BIO

Carolyn Harris created the “Keeping It Together” workbook after having been faced with the daunting task of sorting out her father’s affairs after his death ...

“One of my first thoughts when dad died was “oh no I have to sort out ALL of his affairs”. As the sole executor of his Will I knew this was going to be all my responsibility.

Visualising all the piles of papers on his dining room table I knew that this was not going to be a simple task.

The process was pretty hit and miss – rummaging through paperwork around the house to establish what was what. Collating bills as they came in... Checking bank statements to ascertain patterns of regular payments/income and therefore identifying who I needed to contact re his death.

This proved to be challenging and frustrating at times...

When it came to organising dad’s funeral we had no idea of what his final wishes would have been, we just had to guess at what he might have liked.”

Coping with the death of a loved one is stressful enough, but having to sort out their affairs can be even more daunting.

Whilst making decisions about dad’s funeral and making assumptions as to what he would like, I got to thinking IF ONLY he had told us or documented it for us...

Hence the creation of “Keeping It Together”.
